In the last three years Thermal Chicago has expanded the capacity of its plants by about 12%. Additional plant expansions are planned in conjunction with new customers beginning service. Six new customers have begun taking service in the last three years and several more are signed up to begin taking service over the next couple of years. These new buildings house an interesting mix of occupants including commercial office, hotel, residential, retail and entertainment. With these new customers, Thermal Chicago serves about 100 buildings in the downtown Chicago area.
